

What is MND?

Motor Neurone Disease is a devastating terminal condition with no known cause or cure that takes away a person's ability to move, speak, swallow, and eventually breathe.

If you have MND, the motor neurones that carry messages from the brain to your muscles become damaged and die. When this happens, the muscles they support weaken and waste away

On average, two Australians are diagnosed with, and two die from MND each day, and roughly 14 lives are forever changed by each diagnosis.

How you make a difference

MND Queensland is the only Australian State Association that doesn't receive ongoing State Government funding. Queenslanders over 65 who are living with MND are ineligible for NDIS funding. A My Aged Care funding package for those over 65 is woefully inadequate to support someone with MND in comparison.

"The likelihood that your My Aged Care Package will get approved before you die is very slim. My mother was certainly one of those who knew that she was going to need one but never got it." - Penny

We rely on the generosity of community members like you to deliver many of our essential services to Queenslanders impacted by MND. If you're inspired to make a difference, please consider giving.

MND Queensland

We are the leading organisation wholly focused on supporting Queenslanders living with Motor Neurone Disease—and their families, friends, and carers—Established in 1983, we offer understanding and practical assistance by delivering information, education, and specialist support services.

Our mission is to ensure access to best-practice care and support for every Queenslander impacted by MND and contribute to finding a cure.
